ers and Pirates play, but chiefly to see the great shortstop of other days. The Philadelphia Nationals observed the fiftieth anniversary of their membership in the National League and 20 years ago...

may be it is too bad some of them are not under present circumstances—some of them are celebrating a golden anniversary and Hans Wagner cannot make his debut every day of the season...

The players are doing their part to make the game interesting for the fans. A little more enterprise on the part of the front office also would help.

Wrigley Plan for Youngsters. Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs and the Los Angeles Angels, is planning to develop the game in his plan to send young talent to the Catalina Islands...

Pointing out that it looks like a pitching staff will be made up of the likes of Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Cy Young, Miner Brown and other hurling greats, an observant writer in the Brooklyn Eagle makes the timely suggestion that more attention be paid by the magnates to balling-out the twirlers this season.

This season has been productive of many low-hit games—one-hit and two-hit masterpieces. These are reminders of the days when fans thronged the park to see Matty; when the eccentric Waddell was a magnet and when Mordecai Brown, Walter Johnson and others, by sheer personal appeal, made the occasion of their appearances on the mound "big days" for the fans.

Why not set aside certain days for these hurlers and make public announcements that they will hurl on specified afternoons? We know, of course, there is some silly rule, enacted several years ago, forbidding managers to name their pitchers ahead of time...

There is no legitimate reason why the fans should not know when their favorite hurlers are going to work and no logical excuse why the magnates should not cash in on the public desire to see those mound performers in action.

Out of the controversy, pro and con, regarding the recent battle between Washington and New York players, emerges one feature which has been overlooked in the arguments as to who was made Babe Ruth, and of course, his own ability to produce.

The two umpires quickly broke up the fight at second base and when the major engagement got under way in the first inning, they were at once in the tower in the station to "peace" them.

Umpires are blamed for a lot of things—it is one of the penalties of their profession—therefore, it is no more than fitting that they should be praised when praise is due.

Penalties for unnecessary roughness hitherto confined to foul balls soon will become a part of the American League code, it is understood. Considering the large number of spiking incidents that have occurred in the majors and minors this season...

There has been a growing tendency toward making the umpire completely dictator on the field—the lord of all he surveys. Fans and players, alike, resent such an attitude and The Sporting News does not believe that the majority of umpires want to be cast in that role...

Two big factors are keeping Kansas City, Mo., baseball-minded. They are the up-and-coming new management of the American Association club and the officers of the Ban Johnson League, an amateur organization. The latter not only is keeping alive the name of the American League founder in baseball, but is giving opportunity to a large number of boys to play the game.

A similar league functions in Kansas and the two winners will meet in Kansas City this fall to determine the championship. Thousands of fans are attracted to the games and hundreds of youths have found the way opened to them to play the game in actual competition.

Club Owners Stir Interest. They can quicken interest during the week might take a lesson from the results of several special days held this season.

Brooklyn gave Hans Wagner a day, May 4, and some 10,000 fans turned out on a Thursday to watch the Dodge...

THE Holy Cross athletic authorities have to have an old (or near old) "limer" game on the fall day 1930. Located a battery without much trouble. Pretty good battery, too, with its members successful in business now.

Do you know what amount this crack crack battery would be worth? It would be worth three games with the White Elephants? One hundred dollars, each. You won't find any mention of Coakley in the 1933 guides, for Andrew J. was Mr. McAlester's duty in the summer at Park. C. Mack rather led the seekers after information on the new pitcher to believe the range right-hander came from the West—Kansas, possibly—and that his front initial was "C."

Scrubbed by the Fibres

THE club-owners and their managers, on or out of the law, have their ears to the current ground-swell of public opinion, they will take sufficient heed to steam up the ballparks for their pitchers, night or day, and the ball game will be what it has always been...

Bill Corum of the New York Journal-Journal tosses a bouquet to Manager Max Carey (the famous rival). It isn't necessary to go into all the details, or examples of shortsightedness on the part of baseball men. However, on this particular subject, they and their managers can do the game and yet following a service by putting their pitching cards on the table and, may we suggest, in the advertising column, too.
